Terms

1. This data-sharing License does not expire.
2. Direct sharing is permitted, in which the synthetic data, code and documents will be transferred directly to the recipient.
3. The resources may not be used for the development of commercial products or outputs.
4. These resources cannot be shared onward with anyone else. Other potential resource users must approach the original source to use these resources
5. No benefit-sharing agreement is required when using these resources
6. There is no cost recovery payment required for using these resources
7. Publication and dissemination of results from working with these resources are permitted without restrictions.
8. The data and code provider requires attribution on any outputs created using these resources

Confirmations

1. The resource provider confirmed they are responsible for these resources and have authority to create this data-sharing license.
2. When the resources are shared with a recipient under this licence, the licence cannot later be revoked or changed for that sharing agreement: the recipient keeps the right to use the resources even if the resources are later shared elsewhere under a different license or Terms and Conditions.
3. The resource provider has read and understands the terms of the data-sharing license.
